William J. Landgraf, better known as "Vinegar Bill" is the hero of the hour. "Vinegar" went hunting the first of the week. That was his undoing. When the sun rose on the horizon, Bill began to hunt. He spied a lone duck on a pond and carefully stalked the wary bird. When within range he opened fire with his pump gun and took five shots. After the din and smoke of the battle cleared it was found the duck had been bagged. The duck was a decoy. All hail the mighty nymrod!

Claims City Los Out.

In noting an item in The Tribune stating that the A. T. & T. Co. would increase its "boosting" or energy plant at this place, a prominent business man said yesterday: "Had the city granted a franchise to the Nebraska Telephone Co.—which is a part of the A. T. & T. Co.—it was the intention to invest about $30,000 in a central energy plant in North Platte, to house which a substantial two-story brick building about 40x80 feet in dimensions would have been erected. But when the company saw how hostile the people were to corporations, they concluded they would not make the investment. This is one instance where a business proposition was driven out of town instead of being encouraged to locate."

The following is the bill of fare to which the Lutheran Brotherhood will treat their guests and themselves next Tuesday evening at the parish house. A whole roast pig, baked beans, sauerkraut, wieners, stewed oysters, celery, pickles, bread and butter and coffee. This free spread will be cooked and served by the men and to men only. To say that Weingand, Ebright and Haspel are the cooks is sufficient. Besides this inviting supper, an all around good time is in store for those present. The member of the Brotherhood or invited guest who doesn't show up on such an occasion is surely the loser.

Wanted—A girl for general house work, will pay highest wages. Three in family. Inquire of Mrs. W. H. McDonald, 407 West Fifth street.

WOULDN'T BE TAMED.

End of a Wild Stallion That Resented the Touch of Man.

In "Mustangs, Busters and Outlaws of the Nevada Wild Horse Country," in the American Magazine, Rufus Steele writes of the capture of a splendid wild stallion that had long eluded capture. He was an "outlaw." Write Mr. Steele:

"Until we saddled him we did not realize his desperation. We fastened the riata to his front feet. When he tried to run away we jerked his feet from under him, throwing him heavily. As he attempted to rise we threw him again and repeated the maneuver until exhaustion necessitated his capitulation. But his surrender was only temporary. For three years we tried to break him, using every artifice known to us. As quickly as one man gave up the task another would try to conquer him, but every time a human being approached or tried to bridle or saddle him he would bite viciously, while his eyes, protruding from the sockets, blazed fiery red with hate. As the cinch was drawn tight the outlaw, if upon his feet, invariably reared straight up, poised upon his hind legs, then hurled himself backward to the ground. We always mounted him while he was tied down, and to stay after he gained his feet called for action which lasted a day's work into thirty minutes of struggle.

"His end was tragic as his career. In making an attempt at escape by jumping out of a stockade corral he misjudged the distance and became impaled on a jagged post, and a 44 was turned loose upon him to end his suffering."

Cautions.

A lawyer happened to be acquainted with a juror in a petty civil case, and he met him during a recess of the court. The lawyer was just "lighting up," and under ordinary circumstances he would have offered the other a cigar unhesitatingly, but it occurred to him that it might not look right.

"I suppose," he said guardedly, "that a cigar would not influence your verdict?"

The juror was equally cautious. "A good one wouldn't," he replied, "but a poor one might prejudice me."

He got a good cigar.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Nature's Protection For the Ear.

The membrane lining the canal of the ear contains a great number of little glands which secrete a waxy substance having an intensely bitter taste. The purpose of this is to prevent the entrance of insects and to keep the ear clean, as the layer of wax dries in scales, which rapidly fall away, thus removing with them any particle of dust or other foreign matters which may have found entrance to the ear.

Softer.

"I have no doubt you have heard some stories to my discredit," he said. "I don't like to put it in that way," she quietly replied.

"How then?" he hopefully asked. "I have never heard any stories to your credit," said she.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

He Knew.

Mrs. Callar Down—You needn't think that I'm going to fix your trousers at this hour of the night. Callar Down—Tut, tut! It's never too late to mend.—Philadelphia Inquirer.
